September is a Great Time to Plant Grass or Trees

Grass seed germinates well at the temperatures we typically have in September, as long as moisture is available and seed is in contact with the soil. Now is a great time to weed out crabgrass or other undesired plants and fill in bare spots.

For some tips, see <http://www.garden-counselor-lawn-care.com/best-time-to-plant-grass-seed.html>.

This site also recommends raking leaves, aerating, and October fertilization.

To find trees well-adapted to Indiana, consider a native species. See: <https://sites.ipfw.edu/native-trees/>
